

Lex Nichol – Final Cut and Avid Television Editor

I'm highly versatile and equally competent working from an existing format or developing a new format from scratch. I'm used to crafting narratives from sometimes challenging stories, often offering or writing commentary myself to help with a story. I'm best under pressure and love the challenge of working on tight schedules and with the odd spanner threatening to jump into the works.

The last few years have been spent on long term contracts... I tend to end up sticking around for an entire series rather than just cutting the odd show.
